

Boeing On-Line Account Request

Use and Protection of information provided by The Boeing Company

Perform Air International Inc. has entered into agreements which allow for access to certain proprietary information owned by The Boeing Company. This includes such things as Boeing manuals, publications, service bulletins and drawings. All of this information is owned by Boeing and its use is licensed to your Perform Air International Inc. only for very specific purposes. As an employee you may have access to this information either in the form of documents or electronic files. It is important that as an employee you understand the conditions under which Boeing has provided this information and the uses to which it may be put.

The purpose of this document is to make you aware of the agreements in place and to provide a brief summary of your obligation to protect Boeing owned information. This document does not replace or in any way modify those agreements and you should consult the appropriate organization in your company for the specific obligations assumed in them.

If you are issued a computer access identification and password either by Perform Air International Inc. or The Boeing Company, these are for your use and may not be used by or transferred to others either within or outside your company. Use of this access must be only for the benefit of your company.

You must preserve and protect all Boeing documents and drawings and all information contained therein in confidence. You may not disclose Boeing information to subsidiaries, "sister companies", partners or otherwise related companies without specific authorization by Boeing.

Any Boeing information accessed by you or provided to you may be used only for the maintenance, repair, operation or modification of Boeing aircraft for which the information is specified.

You may make copies of Boeing information only for internal use within Perform Air International Inc. and then only if all restrictive legends and proprietary notices on the information are preserved. All copies of Boeing information remain the property of Boeing.

There are specific conditions in the agreements Perform Air International Inc. has with Boeing, which allow for certain Boeing information to be disclosed to government regulatory agencies, as well as to contractors who may perform work for your company within the scope of the Boeing agreements. Before providing any Boeing information to contractors it is your responsibility to ensure that these conditions are met.

Unless specifically authorized in writing by Boeing you may not use Boeing information to manufacture parts. If Boeing authorizes the manufacture of a particular part or parts, these parts must be used by Perform Air International Inc. for its aircraft and may not be sold (except by Perform Air International Inc. if Perform Air International Inc. is repairing an aircraft under contract with the operator of the aircraft).

Boeing appreciates Perform Air International Inc.'s business and strives to provide the best customer support possible. In order to do this, it is imperative that Boeing's proprietary information be protected and preserved.

Please provide the following information and forward the completed request to:
